Our Approach in Early Years

At our school, the early years are viewed as the foundation for the holistic development of children.

Our approach combines the academic rigour of the Cambridge Early Years Curriculum with innovative methods that celebrate curiosity, play, creativity, and active exploration.

With a strong emphasis on artistic, sporting, social, and emotional skills, we create an environment where children are inspired to learn naturally, meaningfully, and joyfully.

Our approach in Early Years

Balancing Structure and Flexibility

The Cambridge Early Years Curriculum provides a strong framework enriched with emerging and constructivist approaches, enabling each child to explore at their own pace while achieving key developmental milestones.

Play as a Learning Tool

Every activity is designed to be playful and engaging, including: Sensory Exploration: Mixing colours, experimenting with materials like sand and water, and observing natural cycles.

Natural Bilingual Education

Daily interactions with bilingual teachers ensure that second language learning is intuitive and practical, avoiding forced memorisation or translation.
